

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

#SAIFE expert workshop on media pluralism 23 June 2021

Bios of participants

Chair

Krisztina Rozgonyi

Krisztina is a senior legal and regulatory expert on the media with a special academic focus on gender mainstreaming in the media. She does research and lectures at the Department of Communication of the University of Vienna, where she is also involved with managing a platform to bridge research with policy agendas. Krisztina was a senior regulator and works with international and European organizations, with national governments, regulators as adviser on media freedom, spectrum policy and digital platform governance.

Experts

Andreas Marckmann Andreassen

Andreas is Editor-in-Chief at the Danish media Markedsføring. He is an experienced speaker on automation, digital ethics and data literacy in the newsrooms, and the author of several books. In 2020, his handbook on automation in the media was printed in 20,000+ copies and sent to all members of the Danish Union of Journalists. The book was based on more than 70 interviews with leading journalists, innovators and experts all over the world. Andreas has covered the intersection between journalism, ethics, freedom of speech and new technologies for more than 10 years.

Emily Bell

Emily is Founding Director of the Tow Center for Digital Journalism at Columbia Journalism School, Leonard Tow professor of Journalism, and a leading thinker, commentator and strategist on digital journalism. The majority of Emily's career was spent at Guardian News and Media in London working as an award winning writer and editor both in print and online. As editor-in-chief across Guardian websites and director of digital content for Guardian News and Media, Emily led the web team in pioneering live blogging, multimedia formats, data and social media ahead, making the Guardian a recognized pioneer in the field. She is co-author of Post Industrial Journalism: Adapting to the Present (2012) with C.W. Anderson and Clay Shirky. Emily is a trustee on the board of the Scott Trust, the owners of The Guardian, a member of Columbia Journalism Review's board of overseers, an adviser to Tamedia Group in Switzerland, chair of the World Economic Forum's Global Advisory Council on social media, and a member of Poynter's National Advisory Board.

Nicholas Diakopoulos

Nicholas is an Associate Professor in Communication Studies and Computer Science (by courtesy) at Northwestern University where he directs the Computational Journalism Lab and is Director of Graduate Studies for the Technology and Social Behavior PhD program. His research focuses on computational journalism, including aspects of automation and algorithms in news production, algorithmic accountability and transparency, and social media in news contexts. He is author of the award-winning book, Automating the News: How Algorithms are Rewriting the Media, published by Harvard University Press in 2019. He holds a Ph.D. in Computer Science, with a focus on Human-Computer Interaction, from the Georgia Institute of Technology.

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

Leyla Dogruel Leyla (Ph.D.) is assistant professor at the department of communication at Johannes Gutenberg-University Mainz, Germany. Her areas of research focus on privacy in digital media, user perceptions and governance of algorithmic curation, media innovation research and news media markets. In a current project, she has investigated Internet users' perceptions and literacy regarding algorithmic curation online. Regarding the area of media pluralism, her research centers on (local) media markets and the (economic) pressure in the context of structural changes legacy media are facing. She has recently provided policy recommendations for a public funding scheme focusing on local journalism in Germany.

Maria Donde Maria works for the UK Office of Communications (Ofcom) as the Head of International Content Policy, covering media, content and broadcasting issues. She leads on Ofcom's engagement with other European media regulators, most particularly through EPRA (where is currently a Vice-Chair) as well as international bodies, and represents Ofcom on the full range of media policy questions including media literacy. She oversaw Ofcom's input into the negotiations on the AVMS Directive and oversees Ofcom's relationship with European and global institutions on questions of media and content policy. She was recently elected as Chair of the Council of Europe Committee of Experts on Media Environment and Reform. Her regulatory background is in advertising, having spent four years at the Advertising Standards Authority before joining Ofcom's Broadcasting Standards department. Prior to that, she worked in media analysis, and before that as a radio producer for the BBC World Service. She has a Modern Languages degree from Cambridge University and a Masters degree in Literary Translation.

Maximilian Gahntz Maximilian is a Mercator fellow at Mozilla, where he works on the regulation and governance of artificial intelligence as well as on platform accountability, with a particular focus on strengthening transparency and oversight of algorithmic systems. As a fellow of the Mercator Fellowship on International Affairs, he previously worked at the European Commission on the proposal for its Artificial Intelligence Act. He holds graduate degrees in Public Administration and Public Policy with a focus on tech policy from Columbia University and Sciences Po Paris.

Brandi Geurkink Brandi is Senior Manager at Mozilla Foundation where she leads Mozilla's advocacy work on countering disinformation and tech platform accountability. Brandi's work combines open research and investigative methods to examine how internet platforms shape our reality and push for changes in policy to create a healthier and more just internet. Her background is in campaigning and community organising on a variety of issues like poverty relief, tenants' rights, democratic dissent, money reform, and internet freedom.

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

Nadine Gogu Nadine is the director of the Independent Journalism Center (IJC) in Moldova, a leading media resource center that provides assistance to journalists and media institutions throughout the country. Nadine helps carry out the organization's mission to promote independent, impartial and pluralistic media in Moldova. Under her supervision, since 2010, a number of important draft laws have been developed, including the draft Law on freedom of expression, Law on Advertising, amendments to the Broadcasting Code in order to ensure transparency of media ownership, amendments to the Law on Access to Information. She also has carried a series of national and international research projects focused on analyzing media law and the media landscape in Moldova, on monitoring media and assessing manipulation and propaganda techniques used by local and foreign media. In addition, Nadine is an instructor at Chisinau School of Advanced Journalism. Nadine graduated from Moldova State University and earned an M.A. in Journalism and Mass Communications at Oklahoma State University.

Natali Helberger Natali is Distinguished University Professor of Law and Digital Technology, with a special focus on AI at the University of Amsterdam, and elected member of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences (KNAW) and of the Royal Holland Society of Sciences and Humanities (KHMW). Her research over the past 5 years has concentrated on questions of how AI and ADM transform society, and the implications this has for law and governance. In pursuit of these questions, she is one of the co-founders of the Research Priority Areas Information, Communication and the Data Society and Human(e) AI. As one of the four AI University Professors at the UvA, member of the Dutch National AI Coalition, the VSNU AI Expert Table and track leader in the national Digital Society Initiative, Helberger plays an active role in shaping the conditions for AI research in the Netherlands.

Sam Jeffers Sam is the co-founder of Who Targets Me? software to help voters understand how political campaigns are chasing their vote using Facebook advertising. Over 10,000 people have installed Who Targets Me in more than 50 countries and ten languages. The project has tracked political advertising in 10 election campaigns to date, and is currently monitoring the Brazilian and US midterm election campaigns. Who Targets Me has been covered extensively in the media, including the BBC and New York Times. Before founding Who Targets Me in 2017, Sam spent 7 years at Blue State Digital (the agency that helped elect President Obama in 2008 and 2012) as UK Managing Director, then Executive Creative and Strategy Director. He holds a First Class degree in International Relations from LSE and a Master's in Public Policy from Harvard's Kennedy School of Government.

Vladan Joler Vladan is an academic, researcher and artist, and founder of SHARE Foundation. In 2018, he co-published Anatomy of an AI System, a large-scale map and long-form essay investigating the human labour, data and planetary resources required to build and operate an Amazon Echo device. Previously, he published Facebook Algorithmic Factory, which includes deep forensic investigations and visual mapping of the algorithmic processes and forms of exploitation behind the largest social network. Vladan's research focuses on information warfare, metadata analysis, browsing history exploitation, surveillance, and Internet architecture. His work is included in the permanent collections of the Museum of Modern Art in New York City, the Victoria and Albert Museum and the Design Museum in London, and the Ars Electronica Center. His work has been exhibited in more than a hundred international exhibition, and he has received numerous awards. In addition, Vladan is a professor of new media at the University of Novi Sad, and has given lectures at numerous educational and art institutions.

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

Elliot Jones Elliot is a Researcher at the Ada Lovelace Institute. He is currently working on a project examining the deployment of recommendation system use by public service media organisations and ethics and governance challenges they raise. He was previously responsible for Ada's work on digital contact tracing and vaccine passports. Before Ada, Elliot was a Researcher at the Centre for the Analysis of Social Media, part of the think-tank Demos. While there, he worked on understanding the spread of online disinformation, social media advertising transparency, and responding to the UK government's online harms legislation.

Pascal Jürgens Pascal (Dr.) is a computational communication scholar with extensive experience in large-scale empirical research, theoretical modeling and methods development. His work focuses on the influences of digital intermediaries on digital communication, network structures and breakup models of audiences, disinformation and social bots, political communication, and future impacts of artificial intelligence. Notable publications include the first empirical studies of Twitter politics in Germany, automated analyses of personalization in search engine results, and representative end-to-end analyses of algorithmic effects on the diversity of news consumption. Pascal is currently a postdoctoral researcher at the department of communication, University of Mainz (Germany) and will be a visiting professor at the department of communication, University of Jena this fall.

Kari Karppinen Kari is Senior Lecturer in Media and Communication Studies in the Faculty of Social Sciences at the University of Helsinki. His research focuses on media and democracy, communication rights and the guiding principles of media policy. He is a member of the Helsinki Media Policy Research Group and Communication Rights in the Age of Digital Disruption research consortium. He has previously also worked as a visiting research fellow at the University of Sydney, Westminster University and Fordham University. He is the author of the book Rethinking Media Pluralism, four other co-authored books and a number of journal articles and book chapters in the fields of media and communication studies, political theory and public policy.

Matthias Kettemann Matthias (Dr., LL.M. (Harvard)) is senior researcher at the Leibniz Institute for Media Research | Hans-Bredow-Institut (HBI) and head of its

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media research programme on rule-making in online spaces. He is a visiting professor for International Law at the University of Jena, he leads research group on law and governance of digitality at the Alexander von Humboldt Institute for Internet and Society (HIIG) and the Sustainable Computing Lab of the Vienna University of Economics and Business. He has recently published on the role of courts in internet governance, increasing fairness in targeted advertising, EU cyber diplomacy and cybersecurity policies, cybernorms and cyber cooperation reform, platforms and Corona-related disinformation, Twitter in India, Internet and jurisdiction, data access for academics, human rights in digital times \(for the German Bundestag\) and reinstatement rights for users of platforms. He has recently written and (co)edited books on online rule and power, on navigating normative orders, and on freedom of expression and the internet.

Beata Klimkiewicz

Beata is Professor of the Jagiellonian University in the area of media and social communication studies. She holds Jean Monnet Chair for the 2019 – 2022 project on Media freedom, trust and transparency in the European Union (FREEMED). Since 2012, she has been involved in co-operation with the Centre for Media Pluralism and Media Freedom at European university Institute in Florence as a member of Scientific Committee and national expert in Media Pluralism Monitor (MPM). B. Klimkiewicz has also provided expertise for the UNESCO's report on World Trends in Freedom of Expression and Media Development. She is an author of books "A Polyvalent Media Policy in the Enlarged European Union" published by the Jagiellonian University Press and "Media Freedom and Pluralism: Media Policy Challenges in the Enlarged Europe" published by the CEU Press". Recently, she published articles on media ownership transparency in Europe and structural polarization of the public sphere in Poland.

Bojana Kostic

Bojana is a human rights researcher, with a diverse portfolio. She has led data collection and research initiatives on the safety of journalists, authored academic texts on the intersection of minority rights and technology, and carried out research for digital governance initiatives for organizations including the OSCE, ICFJ and UNESCO. Bojana uses human rights standards to drive change at the highest levels – specifically in the areas of participatory research methodologies and inclusive policy design – addressing obstacles preventing women and other underrepresented communities from equal access to and ability to participate within the digital space.

James MacLaren

James is PhD Student at the University of Birmingham. After 15 years teaching philosophy and religious studies in secondary schools, James returned to university to complete an MA in Philosophy. He concentrated on issues of moral philosophy and human rights and his dissertation thesis considered the value of news recommendations on social media platforms. Following this James applied to work on a PhD study with Professor Karen Yeung in partnership with the BBC on the question 'How can the BBC deliver data-driven personalised media content recommendations responsibly?' From a foundation of the legal obligations facing the BBC as public service broadcaster, James is developing an analytical framework drawn from issues facing political philosophy, including the challenges of deliberative democracy and epistemic trust. James is looking to produce concrete, realisable recommendations on how the BBC might deploy recommender systems responsibly.

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

Samvel Martirosyan

Samvel is a co-founder of CyberHUB-AM, an organization providing IT and digital security support to Armenian civil society and media. He is a CEO at Hoory startup, creating AI-powered customer support tools. Samvel specializes in information security, new media, and media in general. Martirosyan works as a new media trainer and lecturer in several organizations and universities in Armenia. Martirosyan has previously worked as a journalist for several Armenian and Russian news agencies and served as an Editor in several media projects. Samvel is providing training for journalists, activists, businesses, governmental bodies on information security, social media marketing, public relations. Samvel Martirosyan is providing consulting for NGO, businesses on social media marketing, PR, information security.

Eleonora Maria Mazzoli

Eleonora has an academic and professional background in media management and economics, platform governance, and digital policy. Holding a BA from Bocconi University, an RMA from Utrecht University, she is currently an ESRC-funded researcher at the “Data, Networks and Society” programme of the Media and Communications Department, at the London School of Economics and Political Science. Alongside her current academic work in the area of content curation and platform governance, she also acts as external expert and advisor, consulting on media economics and digital policy challenges to various organisations and institutions, including Council of Europe, Journalism Trust Initiative, Federation of European Publishers, BBC, RAI, and civil society organisations. Prior to this, she worked as project manager and European affairs assistant for the Legal and Policy Department of the European Broadcasting Union, specialised on innovation, data, AI, and media freedom; and as European affairs advisor for RAI, the Italian public service broadcaster, overseeing the developments of relevant EU regulatory framework and initiatives.

Marko Milosavljević

Marko is a Full Professor, Ph.D., at the Department of Journalism at the Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia. He was a Head of the Department from 2008 until 2012. He is a Vice-Chair of the Committee of Experts on Media Environment and Reform (MSI-REF) at the Council of Europe. He is the chair of Communications Law and Policy section of European Communication Research and Education Association (ECREA). He is a member of Horizon2020 project EMBEDDIA, researching artificial intelligence in the media and newsrooms, where he takes the position of manager for Ethics & Policy, Dissemination and journalism. He is an author of a number of research papers and journal articles on artificial intelligence, in journals such as Digital Journalism and Journalism, and in books (most recent: »Algorithms, Automation, and News: New Directions in the Study of Computation and Journalism«, Routledge, May 2021).

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

Mira Milosevic

Mira is the Executive Director at Brussels-based Global Forum for Media Development (GFMD). She leads GFMD's engagement with the United Nations, the Internet Governance Forum, and other multilateral institutions as well as GFMD's international efforts advocating for the sustainability of journalism and news media. Mira frequently writes and speaks about the intersection of media, economy, technology, and human rights. Before joining GFMD, she authored the World Press Trends reports, the most authoritative global source of data and analysis on the international newspaper industry, managed Media Development Programmes at WAN-IFRA, served as Chief Platform Officer at Indie Voices, and as Director of Belgrade-based Media Center. Mira holds a BA in Economics and MA in Communication; she has started her career as a journalist and is still a journalist at heart.

Iva Nenadić

Iva is a postdoctoral research fellow at the European University Institute (EUI) in Florence and an instructor in Journalism at the Faculty of Political Science in Zagreb. She studies media pluralism in the context of content moderation and curation policies by large online platforms, with a special focus on self-, co-, and regulatory interventions that seek to address problems of disinformation and to ensure pluralistic and diverse (social) media environments. Since 2016, she has been affiliated with the EUI's Centre for Media Pluralism and Media Freedom, where she is one of the central coordinators in the EU-wide Media Pluralism Monitor - a scientific tool designed to identify potential risks to media pluralism, which serves also as a key source of information for the media freedom angle of the European Commission's annual rule of law reports. She is also a member of recently established European Digital Media Observatory (EDMO).

Katie Pentney

Katie is an international human rights lawyer, currently working as a legal consultant with Global Legal Action Network. She has an LL.M. in European and International Human Rights Law (summa cum laude) from the University of Leiden. Katie previously worked as a Visiting Researcher at the Institute for Information Law (IViR) at the University of Amsterdam, where she developed a podcast series on hate speech, AI and freedom of expression, funded by the OSCE RFoM's #SAIFE project. She has worked on hate speech issues as a litigator in Canada, as Legal Counsel at the Information and Privacy Commission of Ontario, and as a policy analyst at the Canadian Human Rights Commission.

Asja Rokša-Zubčević

Asja is COO of the research and consulting company consultancy Wagner-Hatfield, a research and consulting company offering numerous services pertaining to policy, regulation and strategy in the media and digital economy sectors. She has worked at the Communications Regulatory Agency (RAK) of Bosnia and Herzegovina for a number of years, was involved in the defense of freedom of expression case before the Human Rights Chamber of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and co-authored of a number of publications on audiovisual policy and regulation. She performed as a judge at the Monroe E. Price Media Law Moot Court, as part of the Programme in Comparative Media Law and Policy. Asja represented Bosnia and Herzegovina in the work of the Standing Committee for Transfrontier Television and many other international fora. She is a Council of Europe expert, involved in preparation of a range of different studies and research documents. She regularly contributed to preparation of documents, studies and panels of European Platform of Regulatory Authorities (EPRA).

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

Christopher Schwartz

Christopher is an American journalist and academic. He is specialized in counter-disinformation and has researched the strengths and limitations of technology-centered responses to “fake news” and coordinated inauthentic behavior. He is earning a doctorate in philosophy of journalism at KU Leuven in Belgium while working as a journalist in the Kyrgyz Republic.

Maria Luisa Stasi

Maria works as Senior Legal Officer at the free speech organisation ARTICLE 19. Based in the London office, she contributes to the development of the organisation’s policies on infrastructure, competition, and regulatory framework for telecoms, internet providers and online service providers. She also provides legal support to the organisation’s regional offices on digital rights and media policy issues.

Dhanaraj Thakur

Dhanaraj is Research Director at the Center for Democracy & Technology, where he leads research that advances human rights and civil liberties online. Over the last 15 years, he has designed and led several research projects aimed at tech policy audiences and ranging in scope from multi-national studies to community level work. He holds a PhD in Public Policy from the Georgia Institute of Technology (USA), and is a graduate of the London School of Economics, the University of the West Indies, and the University of Technology in Jamaica.

Max van Drunen

Max is a PhD researcher at the Institute for Information Law, University of Amsterdam. His research explores the legal implications of personalisation on the media and on platforms. In that context he has for example focused on the way media law can safeguard editorial independence, transparency, and trust.

Kristina Voko

Kristina is the executive director of Balkan Investigative Reporting network in Albania (BIRN Albania) from 2014 and coordinates the network’s activities, fundraising and projects in the office in Tirana. During her professional experience with BIRN, she has been involved in designing and implementing projects and research studies related to journalism, freedom of information, media freedom, open data and transparency initiatives. Before joining BIRN, she has been engaged in coordinating and managing different projects for national and international organizations. With a background in Psychology, Voko has an extensive experience in quantitative and qualitative research methods, by leading many research projects in media and other fields. In the last years she has been directly involved in researches on media freedom and internet governance, such as Media Pluralism Monitor Albania, Media Ownership Monitor Albania, Internet Governance in Albania and its Role in Media Freedom, etc.

Marlena Wisniak

Marlena works at the intersection of international human rights and technology, with a focus on algorithmic systems, platform governance, and business and human rights. She is a Senior Legal Consultant at the

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

European Center for Not-for-Profit Law (ECNL), where she conducts research and advocacy on AI and human rights. Marlena is also the Co-Director at Taraaz, a non-profit on technology and human rights. Previously, Marlena oversaw the civil society portfolio at the Partnership on AI and served as the in-residence expert on international human rights. Her other appointments have included Amnesty International, the Danish Institute for Human Rights, the Investor Alliance for Human Rights, Oxfam America, and the Inter-American Court of Human Rights, among others. Marlena holds degrees from Stanford Law School and the University of Geneva, and she is admitted to practice law at the Geneva (Swiss) Bar.

Rapporteurs

Jennifer Adams

Jennifer (she/her) is a consultant/researcher and advocate on gender and media for international development. She is the former Media Freedom Project Officer in the Office of the OSCE Representative on Freedom of the Media where she led the global Safety of Female Journalists Online (#SOFJO) campaign, including production of the award-winning documentary, A Dark Place. She is currently a freelance consultant, social change and advocacy researcher, and co-founder of the Comms Policy Collaborative, a media policy institute, at the University of Vienna, where she's lead on outreach, policy innovation, and grant management. Jennifer's specialization is in the areas of program development, and policy research for feminist and inclusive governance. She is passionate about issues that lie at the intersection of human rights and digital innovation, with a particular focus on the safety and participation of women and marginalized communities in development and advocacy initiatives.

Lucien Heitz

Lucien Heitz is a PhD student at the University of Zurich. He works at the department of informatics and is a member of the Digital Society Initiative. The focus of his research lies on diversity-optimized recommender systems. In his current project, he develops and looks at the impact of recommender algorithms that are optimized for political diversity in the domain of online news. Lucien holds a bachelor's degree in philosophy and a master's degree in computer science.

Observers

Council of Europe

Patrick Penninckx

Patrick has spent the last 30 years of his career with the Council of Europe, contributing to the transformation processes of the Organisation and developing partnerships with international and national institutions. Currently heading the Information Society Department under the Directorate General Human Rights and the Rule of Law, Patrick coordinates standard setting and cooperation activities in the fields of media, internet governance, data protection, cybercrime and artificial intelligence. He is also responsible for projects related to public-private partnerships and cooperation with business partners. His professional focus encompasses areas such as freedom of expression, safety of journalists, sound internet governance, international standards in the data protection, action against cybercrime and the impact of AI on human rights. An outspoken public speaker promoting the Council of Europe values and achievements, he holds Political Science and Educational degrees from the University of Leuven. Previously, Patrick oversaw Human Resources policy development, transforming the administrative.

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

European Commission

Carlos Perez-Maestro

Carlos works in the Unit "Audiovisual and Media Services Policy" in DG CONNECT of the European Commission. This unit develops policy and legislation in the field of audiovisual media services, with a particular focus on the application of Audiovisual Media Services Directive and on policies to strengthen media freedom and pluralism. Carlos has spent most of his career in DG CONNECT, where he has been dealing with telecoms regulation, broadband deployment policies, consumer issues, universal service, net neutrality, and online disinformation policies.

AND

Diana Vlad Calcic

Diana is a policy officer at the European Commission, department for Communications Networks, Content and Technology (DG CONNECT). She works on online platforms' policy and regulation, most recently on the Digital Services Act proposed by the Commission in December last year. Her focus areas are policy and socio-technical considerations on algorithmic accountability and observability, data use in the platforms' environment, content governance and implications for fundamental rights online. She has been with the Commission since 2011 and had a background in political science and computer science.

EU Fundamental Rights Agency

David Reichel

David is Project Manager in the Social Research, Research and Data Unit at the EU Fundamental Rights Agency (FRA) responsible for managing FRA's research on artificial intelligence and on online content moderation. He has extensive experience in working with data and statistics in an international context. Prior to joining FRA in 2014, he worked for the research department of the International Centre for Migration Policy Development (ICMPD) and as a lecturer at the Institute for Sociology and the Institute for International Development at the University of Vienna. He has published numerous articles, working papers and book chapters on issues related to migration and integration statistics, citizenship and human rights.

OR

Jana Gajdošová

Jana is Programme Manager on Just, Digital and Secure Societies at the Research and Data Unit at the EU Fundamental Rights Agency (FRA). Jana's areas of expertise with respect to the FRA's work include: international human rights law; the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR); access to justice; national human rights institutions and data protection. She previously worked as a lawyer in the Office of the Government Agent of the Slovak Republic before the European Court of Human Rights, as a research fellow in the School of Law, University of East Anglia and as an intern at the European Commission's DG Legal Service. She has a PhD in human rights law with the ECHR as the main subject, and has published a number of book chapters and articles in the fields of human rights law – including co-authoring two chapters in Colombi Ciacchi, Comandé and Brüggemeier (eds.), Fundamental Rights and Private Law in the EU (Cambridge University Press 2010).

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

European Audiovisual Observatory

Maja Cappello

Maja is Head of Department for Legal Information at the European Audiovisual Observatory since 2014. She previously worked for the Italian regulator AGCOM from 1998 and was Head of AGCOM's Digital Rights Unit of the Media Services Directorate. Maja was also Vice President of EPRA (European Platform of Regulatory Authorities) from 2011 to 2014. Italian-Norwegian mother tongue, in her daily work at the Italian regulator she has been dealing with audiovisual regulatory issues at European level, both contributing to international conferences and committees, and participating as national expert in European Union and Council of Europe cooperation projects. She is the author of articles and speeches in the areas of audiovisual media services, media pluralism, copyright and consumer protection and holds an LLM in EU law and a PhD in European social law after graduating in Law in 1994. She has been lecturing in Media law at University level (Bachelor, Master and PhD) since 2001.

European Broadcasting Union

Lalya Gaye

Lalya is an award-winning digital media artist, senior interaction designer, and expert in emerging technologies, with two decades of international experience in engineering, academic research, teaching, consulting and coordination. Lalya now works at the European Broadcasting Union in Geneva, where she coordinates the EBU's transversal initiative on AI and data for public service media broadcasters. She is also a regular guest teacher at the Media Design programme at the School of Art and Design in Geneva at the Interaction Design programme at ZHdK in Zurich, and is a member of faculty at the MSc in Strategy & Design for the Anthropocene at ESC Clermont School of Management and Strate Ecole de Design Lyon.

OSCE Office of the High Commissioner on National Minorities

Marc Fumagalli

Marc holds an MPhil in European Politics and Society. Worked for several years in Central Asia, initially as Political Officer for the EU Delegations to Kazakhstan and Tajikistan. Served as Political Analyst in the ODIHR EOM to the parliamentary elections in Kyrgyzstan in 2010. Headed International Alert's country office in Tajikistan for 3 years, coordinating programmes promoting dialogue, civic education and tolerance. Was posted to southeast Ukraine as Monitoring Officer in the OSCE SMM (2014-2015). Since 2016, works as a Senior Adviser to the OSCE HCNM, covering Central Asia and the South Caucasus, and various thematic strands, including minorities and the media.

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

OSCE Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights (ODIHR)

Susan Kerr

Susan Kerr is the Senior Adviser on Freedom of Religion or Belief at the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe's Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights in Warsaw. She has over fifteen years of European public affairs experience, including from within the European Parliament and the nonprofit sector. Susan holds a PhD in philosophy (peace studies) from the University of Bradford, a master's degree in business administration from Durham University, a master's degree in international politics from the Free University of Brussels, and a master's degree in modern European languages and European Union studies from the University of Edinburgh.

OSCE Office of the Secretary General

Ignacio Talegon Campoamor

Ignacio is an Executive Officer in the Office of the OSCE's Secretary General, Helga Maria Schmid, where he covers, among other portfolios, technology issues. As such he is co-ordinating a soon-to-be-launched new cross-departmental initiative which is aimed at exploring the link between new technologies, such as artificial intelligence, and transnational threats. Previously he served as Youth Focal Point in the Office of the OSCE Secretary General, was desk officer for UN Security Council issues in the Spanish Ministry for Foreign Affairs and worked in the Spanish Mission to the UN in New York.

Ranking Digital Rights
(OSCE RFoM Implementing Partner)

Amy Brouillette

Amy is the Research Director of Ranking Digital Rights, responsible for planning and overseeing RDR's research, including the RDR Corporate Accountability Index. Prior to joining RDR, Brouillette served as director of the European Media Program at the Center for Media, Data and Society (CMDS) at Central European University in Budapest. Her work at CMDS involved developing and managing the Center's research and projects related to media and freedom of expression in Europe. In addition to her work at CMDS, Brouillette has also served as a research consultant and scholar-in-residence at the Center for Global Communication Studies (CGCS), Annenberg School for Communications, University of Pennsylvania. She holds a master's degree in journalism from the University of Colorado, Boulder. Her articles have appeared in Foreign Policy, Al Jazeera, and the Columbia Journalism Review.

AND

Veszna Wessenauer

Veszna is the research manager of the RDR Corporate Accountability Index. She holds an MA in Human Rights from Central European University, where she focused on issues related to internet governance and media freedom. Prior to joining RDR, she worked with several Hungarian and international NGOs, including as a policy analyst for Political Capital, a Hungarian think tank focused on democracy and rule of law in Central Europe. The focus of her work has been on internet governance, digital rights, disinformation, active citizenship, and civic engagement. She has also previously served as a research fellow at the Center for Media, Data and Society (Central European University – School of Public Policy), researching topics related to journalistic source protection, online privacy, and data protection, and online political extremism. Wessenauer currently lives in Budapest, Hungary.

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights

Marcelo Daher

Marcelo is a human rights officer at the UN human rights office (OHCHR) in Geneva. Working on online civic space issues for OHCHR thematic engagement division, Marcelo previously lead the support to UN Special Rapporteurs on freedom of expression reporting on issues such as surveillance, access to information and online censorship. Still for the UN, he supported the preparation and dissemination of the UN study on violence against children in OHCHR and UNICEF. Before that, Marcelo worked at the Inter American Commission on human rights of the OAS and was a researcher at the Centre for the Study on Violence of the University of Sao Paulo, Brazil where he coordinated a network of Human Rights Observatories.

UNESCO

Guy Berger

Guy is Director for Freedom of Expression and Media Development at UNESCO. He is responsible for the Organization's global work on press freedom, safety of journalists, internet freedom, media pluralism and independence, gender and media, media and information literacy, and journalism education. Before joining UNESCO, he headed the School of Journalism and Media Studies at Rhodes University in South Africa. He has also worked in both press and television and had a long-running column on The Mail & Guardian website. Besides that, he was the deputy chair of the South African National Editor's Forum. He holds a Doctorate in Philosophy, from Rhodes University, has published extensively, and has won several awards.

#SAIFE team

Office of the OSCE Representative on Freedom of the Media

Teresa Ribeiro

Teresa is the fifth Representative on Freedom of the Media. She has vast political, diplomatic, human rights and media experience. Prior to this position, she was Secretary of State of Foreign Affairs and Cooperation at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Portugal, while serving as President of the National Commission for Human Rights. She was also Secretary of State for European Affairs at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Portugal and Deputy Secretary General at the Union for the Mediterranean, positions that gave her extensive experience in dealing with the EU institutions and Member States, as well as with its close neighbourhood. Throughout her career, Teresa has held different positions in media, both in Portugal and in multilateral organizations, such as President of the Institute of the Media of Portugal, Chairperson of the Steering Committee on Mass Media of the Council of Europe, as well as co-founder and first elected President of the Executive Board of Obercom – Media Observatory. She holds a degree in Philosophy from the University of Lisbon.

Deniz Wagner

Deniz is a human rights and international security expert, striving to drive change by helping design policy for governments, regulators, and media at the intersection of digital technologies. As adviser to the OSCE Representative on Freedom of the Media (RFoM), she currently leads the Office's #SAIFE project putting a Spotlight on Artificial Intelligence and Freedom of Expression. Deniz joined RFoM in 2010 and has advised on strategic communications, led projects establishing independent media self-regulatory bodies, and supported legal reform initiatives to enhance media pluralism in numerous countries. Deniz has also worked as a senior adviser for human rights at the Austrian Ministry for Europe, Integration and Foreign Affairs.

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

Julia Haas

Julia is an international law and human rights expert. In her work, she has focused on international relations, the intersection of technology and human rights, and the prevention of marginalization. Julia particularly focuses on policy research and development in the field of internet governance and digital participation, implementing the project on the impact of artificial intelligence on freedom of expression and working on digital safety of women journalists at the Office of the OSCE Representative on Freedom of the Media. Previously, she worked as legal officer and human rights adviser at the Austrian Ministry for Europe, Integration and Foreign Affairs. Julia is counselor at the Vienna Forum for Democracy and Human Rights. She holds a Master's degree in Law from the University of Vienna (summa cum laude), a scholarship for its LLM program on Information and Media Law and is a PhD candidate on the impact of digital innovations on media freedom.

Oleksandra Hrybenko

Oleksandra is a Junior Professional Officer at the Office of the OSCE Representative on Freedom of the Media (RFoM). Oleksandra joined the RFoM in September 2020 and since has assisted with the organization of international events, implementation of projects, monitoring of violations of the freedom of the media and drafting communication materials. Prior to the RFoM, Oleksandra worked as a Research Assistant at the Institute for Peace Research and Security Policy in Hamburg assisting with research on the security sector reforms in Eastern Europe and Central Asia and hate speech. She also worked as a field producer and freelance journalist reporting on the conflict in Eastern Ukraine for the international media for three years. Oleksandra has an MA degree in Journalism and Globalization.

Access Now (OSCE RFoM Implementing Partner)

Eliška Pírková

Eliška works as Europe Policy Analyst at Access Now, international civil society organisation that defends and extends digital rights of online users at risk. At Access Now, she leads European work on content governance and the protection of freedom of expression online, including the EU Digital Services Act package and European Democracy Action Plan, among others. She is a human rights lawyer by education and training, with previous experience working for international organisations and as a legal researcher. She is a member of the Council of Europe's Committee of Experts on Combating Hate Speech, nominated by the Council of Europe as an independent expert.